Abstract
What should be done to establish a state in its true sense? The political science literature is full of simple and complex solutions - economic, sociological, political and cultural – to establish it. Although we cannot deny the importance of these theories to be, but the fact is that its application in many countries is at best led to heterogeneous and inconsistent communities. While this can be explained in terms of different scientific disciplines, from the perspective of this paper, it should be due in the absence of a comprehensive and coherent intellectual tradition. Without a coherent intellectual tradition, you cannot expect to form a real modern state. If you require a State of this type, Political philosophy as the first human intellectual effort to rationalize the politics can still be considered. To focus on political philosophy and exploring the nature of it, the present article tries to pay an attention the potential possibilities of this school for the establishment of a modern intellectual state.

Keywords
law, political philosophy, political system, rational state, rationality and political society.

* Email: aliardestani@semnan.ac.ir
Fax: +98 23 33654083
GLOBALIZATION OF URBANS AND GLOCALIZATION DIPLOMACY (CASE STUDY: URBAN DIPLOMACY)

Mohammad Tohidfam
Associate Professor, Department of Political Science, Islamic Azad University, Iran

Shahab Dalili
Ph.D. Student, Department of Political Science, Islamic Azad University, Iran
(Received: 12 Jul. 2015 - Accepted: 22 Nov. 2015)

Abstract
In the global sphere, changes in events and their environmental relationships have a potential to effect the regions like economy, politics, and culture. The process of globalization characterized by manifestation of the universal electronic village, information revolution, compact of space and time, extension of global consciousness. In the other hand, cities also have an interrelation with the process of globalization. Today we can see the connection between global cities and metropolises. This meaningful global changes, recognized as a main cause in change diplomacy. As if, traditional diplomacy no longer able to resolves recent problems. The main question of this essay is that what is the effect of globalization on cities and political relations, and at the same time, on international relations, specially nation-state diplomacy? Finally, we argue, as a hypothesis, that diplomacy in accordance with globalization changes, in sub-national and trans-national spheres, intends to go toward the parallel diplomacies like urban diplomacy and moves to non-governmental players.

Key words
diplomacy, global city, globalization, glocalization, urban diplomacy.

* Corresponding author Email: Moh.Tohidfam@iauctb.ac.ir Fax: +98 21 88376730
POSTMODERNITY AND REDEFINING THE PLURALIST DEMOCRACY; FROM POLYARCHY TO RADICAL DEMOCRACY

Mohsen Abbaszadeh*
Ph.D., Political Science, University of Tehran, Iran
(Received: 28 Jun. 2012 - Accepted: 30 Apr. 2013)

Abstract
Although there had been consensus on defining the democracy as "the people govern themselves", but objective implication of such vision have seen controversial. Nowadays, this conflict refers to two principal approaches: 1) the "explanatory/methodological" approach that defines democracy as an institutional mechanism for turn-in politics by people's Vote. 2) The "normative/ontological" approach that considers democracy as a kind of form of life, which is based on liberty and equality, that is due to expanding the scope of democratic inclusiveness onto all groups and spectrums. The present paper compares the "polyarchy", as a modern pluralist democracy (the case for first approach) with the "radical democracy", as a postmodern pluralist democracy (a case for second approach); Supposing that Laclau & Mouffe's radical democratic project might be interpreted as the revival of the original ideals of democracy, based on the postmodern turn and shift in political analysis basis, by going beyond from restricted / behavioralist tradition of classic pluralism in the vision of thinkers like Robert Dahl.

Keywords
behavioralism, discourse, interest groups, macro-politics, micro-politics, political participation, post marxism, power, social movements.

* Email: mohsen_abaszadeh64@yahoo.com
THE PROBLEMATIC CONFUSION OF LIBERAL NEUTRALITY

Seyed Mojtaba Azizi
Assistant Professor, Imam Sadeq University, Tehran, Iran
(Received: 26 Dec. 2011 - Accepted: 15 Oct. 2012)

Abstract
Liberal thinkers believe that one of the main features of liberal Public philosophy is the Liberal state neutrality among competing Attitudes of happiness. Hence, one of the liberal ideals is that state refrains to determine the public goods and guiding people towards a particular virtue and so state remains neutral among opposition and competing views in this regard. By studying the books and articles of some liberal thinkers and liberal critics, this article shows that neutrality of state, as some scholars have thought, is not simple and solved. The works of these scholars show that the determination of the accepted and exact meaning of liberal neutrality is more Problematic. Indeed neutrality of state in liberal thought face with the problem and complexity that called problematic confusion. The results showed that the efforts of liberal thinkers in this field have been unsuccessful and the main characteristic of liberal state is faced with a serious dilemma. The present article studies this liberal concept.

Keywords
discontents, liberalism, neutrality, neutrality of state, public philosophy.

* Email: smazizi@isu.ac.ir  Fax: +98 21 88372720
EXAMINATION OF HUMAN RIGHT’S CONDITION UNDER NEO-CONSERVATISM (A CASE STUDY OF USA)

Mahmoud Ghafouri*
Associate Professor, International Relations, Shahid Bahonar University of Kerman, Iran
Mohammad Davand
Ph.D Candidate, International Relations, Tarbiat Modares University, Iran
(Received: 27 Dec. 2014 - Accepted: 13 Dec. 2015)

Abstract
According to human rights organizations, in spite of these organizations' active efforts in the United States, the US government breaches the rights of many American and non-American citizens throughout the world. This article tries to show that the breach of human rights is due to domination of neo-conservatism in the western capitalist countries in the past few decades which believes in inequality of human beings in social, economic and political spheres. Though the principles of human rights believe in equality of all men in all spheres of life. It should be noted that neo-conservatism here means a political, social and economic line of thought in reaction to welfare states programs of the western countries after the World War II, which has a different meaning from neo-conservatism in the usual sense. This mode of thinking believes in inequality of human races; trade free from any government interference, reduction of taxes, anti- feminism, exerting control over different aspects of human life including interception of cyber space and people’s communication.

Keywords
human rights, inequality, neo-conservatism.

* Corresponding author
Email: m.ghafouri@mail.uk.ac.ir
Fax: +98 341 3221447
THE IMPACT OF ENERGY SECURITY ON THE NUCLEAR PROGRAM OF MIDDLE EAST AND NORTH AFRICA

Mohammad Sadegh Koshki
Assistant Professor, Political Science Department, University of Tehran, Iran
Fereshte Mirhoseini
Masters of Middle East & North Africa Studies, University of Tehran, Iran

(Received: 30 Aug. 2014 - Accepted: 18 May 2015)

Abstract
One of the important issues in the Middle East Country is trying to establish or revive nuclear program over the past few years. This Subject can have peaceful or military dimension & components of power and security can be affected. The Regional Country Insisted on its being non-nuclear by 2006. But from this time, gradually altered the traditional approach of these countries on the nuclear issue and the effort is beginning to move toward nuclear Programs. This study seeks to answer to this question that: How will increased energy security resulting from the expansion of nuclear energy program in the region improve the security of the Middle East? The presumption is that regional nuclear energy program of the Middle Eastern states, Will improve the regional Security and then proliferate the attainment of sustainable economic development goals.

Keywords
energy security, nuclear power, nuclear program.

* Corresponding author Email: m.s.koshki@ut.ac.ir Fax: +98 21 66409595
MODERNIZATION AND PROMOTING PARTIES

Elaheh Koolaee*
Professor; Regional Studies Department, University of Tehran, Iran

Yoosef Mazarey
PhD. Candidate; Political Science, University of Tehran, Iran

(Received: 7 Apr. 2014 - Accepted: 30 May 2015)

Abstract
This paper is about to discover the roots of formation of one of the political and social phenomena called political party in a particular period of Iranian contemporary history. In the light of this kind of study we can go beyond the superficial and general analyses which are the characteristic of traditional and under developed societies unfortunately these analyses are used to justify all the phenomena and it’s clear that they often have too simple and misleading results. Studying the way of forming a particular political party leads to a better understanding of it. The main question of this study is the way of forming Kargozaran party and the role of the modernization of Hashemi Rafsanjani’s government to explain this matter among common theories, the modernization theory is used as the theoretical basis and the method is also the analysis of the secondary data. The results of this research indicate that there is a relation between the modernization of Hashemi government and the formation of Kargozaran party. The modernization of Hashemi government created considerable changes in the criteria in Iran which led to the renewed of a new orange class and the formation of Kargozaran party and its continuing victories in different elections. This modernization also provided field of the emergence of Kargozaran party as the main defendant of political and economical reforms, social liberties and cultural tolerance in the political environment of Iran.

Keywords
Kargozaran, modernization, new middle class, political participation, political party.

* Corresponding author
Email: ekolaee@ut.ac.ir
Fax: +98 21 66409595
DELIBERATIVE DEMOCRACY AND SHI'I JURISPRUDENTIAL THEORY OF NA'INI INVESTIGATION OF AN EPistemOLOGICAL POSSIBILITY FOR APPROACHING FORM A RIGHT-DUTY BASED SHI'A JURISPRUDENCE TO THE DELIBERATIVE DEMOCRACY

Abdolmajeed Moballeghi*
Assistant Professor, ISCA (Islamic Science & Culture Academy), Iran
(Received: 5 Sep. 2012 - Accepted: 11 Jun. 2013)

Abstract
This paper investigates the possibility of attending to Iran’s constitutional Shi’l jurisprudence as a perspective for approaching toward deliberative democracy. It claims there is an epistemological potentiality where it is possible to think of the theory of deliberative democracy from a specific Islamic Shi’i jurisprudential theory stated by Mirza Mohammad Hossein Na’ini (1890-1939) during the Iranian constitutional revolution (1905–1911). It focuses on some epistemological similarities between Shi’a jurisprudential theory of Na’ini and Habermas understands of deliberative democracy. The paper argues that both theories rely on a method that systematically centralize “justice” and “freedom” as main pillars of a framework by which they define a conceivable, and consequently, an acceptable law-based ideal society. The paper results even though these disciplines are different in describing their final and ideal society still this approach is worthwhile, since it provides us with an epistemological possibility and, based on that, with a methodological chance to think of an Islamic jurisprudence theory as a background for approaching to a version of deliberative democracy.

Keywords
constitutional jurisprudence, deliberative democracy, freedom, justice, Na'ini.

* Email: m.mobaleqi@isca.ac.ir  Fax: +98 21 66969950
THE RISE OF RADICAL RIGHT PARTIES IN EUROPE:
CAUSES AND CONSEQUENCES

Mohammad Reza Majidi*
Associate Professor, Regional Studies Department, University of Tehran, Iran

Azizollah Hatamzade
Ph.D Student; International Relations, University of Tehran, Iran

(Received: 28 Sep. 2013 - Accepted: 9 Feb. 2015)

Abstract
After World War II, the people and European governments got disappointed from radical right groups, and their activities were banned. However, during the past decade, we witness the strengthening the social base of the mentioned political parties which are seeking power in different European countries. The reason why these groups have come to power is due to a variety of factors causing important implications for the European countries particularly for the Europe Union. This article is going to deal with the most important causes leading these groups to power and its consequences. Based on the findings of this research, it seems that some factors including immigration and economic crisis have had direct impact on the reemergence of radical right parties. Increase in objection toward the trend of immigration to European countries and integration in the European Union are among the most consequences of the rise of these parties.

Keywords
economic crisis, European Union, immigration, nationalism, radical right.

* Corresponding author Email: mmajidi@ut.ac.ir Fax: +98 21 66409595
COMPARATIVE INVESTIGATION OF CAPITALISM FREE MARKET AND ISLAM UNIVERSAL SYSTEM THEORETICAL FOUNDATIONS AND THEIR OPERATION RELATED TO ENVIRONMENT

Nasrin Mosaffa
Associate Professor, International Relations, University of Tehran, Iran

Bahram Einolahy
M.A.; International Relations, University of Tehran, Iran

(Received: 16 Dec. 2014 - Accepted: 26 Dec 2015)

Abstract
The Capitalism Free Market System is a system that has gone beyond the Ideal level and has realized in all over the world. Although it has some achievement for mankind, it has lost its function due to its role in destruction of environment. The theoretical bases of this system are lead to this negative operation. The Islam Universal System is an ideal system that its theoretical bases, that are originated from Quran, prophet and imam’s conduct, will lead to perfection, in addition to keep balance environment. By investigation of Islamic System theoretical foundations compared to Free Market System theoretical foundations it could be found that Islamic System will able to solve current global ecological crisis, unlike Free Market System. This article will explain main origins of this crisis and then propose a fundamental solution for this crisis, in addition to describe the current ecological crisis.

Keywords
conclusion logic, duty logic, environment, free market, intergenerational justice, Islamic system, sustainable development.

* Corresponding author
Email: nmosaffa@ut.ac.ir
Fax: +98 21 66409595
RECONSIDERATION OF VIOLENCE AND TERRORISM REASONS IN THE WORLD

Mohammad Malekzadeh*
Assistant Professor, Political Institute of Islamic Thought and Culture Research
Muslim Regimes, Iran
(Received: 17 Feb. 2015 - Accepted: 18 Jan. 2016)

Abstract
Today’s western accuse Islam and Muslims to violence and radicalism to frighten people of Islam. In the interim however radical performance some of groups that know themselves Muslim, it has not ineffective for bad picture of Mohammads religion, but for two reasons this subject not related to Islamic current: first, majority of Muslims and Islamic religions don’t confirm these groups and hate them. Second, there is lots of evidence for direct or indirect supports of western powers to them. This research while deny assertion relation between Islam and radicalism, from solution of concept of this evidence, search real reasons of violence and terrorism in the world, to inside nature of western capitalism and liberalism regime.

Keys words
capitalisms regime, Islam, terrorism, violence, Western.

* Email: malekzadeh1350@gmail.com
Fax: +98 25 32932637
THE RELATIONSHIP BETWEEN IRAN AND USA; THE ISSUE OF ISRAEL

Razieh Mosavyfar*
Assistant Professor; Hakim Sabzevari University, Iran
(Received: 20 Jan. 2009 - Accepted: 22 Nov. 2009)

Abstract
Iran and US relationship has always been significantly important to both sides and its ups and downs and the reasons behind have constantly attracted the attention of the researchers and thinkers on international relations. Despite the existence of some opportunities to improve common regional relations and interests, the intellectuals in both countries have been mainly concerned about the change in Iran and US relationship from being strategic allies to becoming strategic enemies alongside an increase in hostilities even to the extent of taking military actions. The purpose of this paper is to analyze inimical relations between Iran and Israel and the peace process in the Middle East and the effect of the negative position of the Islamic Republic of Iran about Israel and the Middle East peace process on the continuance of the Iran and US disturbed relationship.

Keywords
Iran, Israel, Middle East Peace Process, strategic relations, USA.

* Email: mosavyfar@ut.ac.ir
Fax: +98 51 44013120
REASONS AND GROUNDS OF PREJUDICE AND STEREOTYPES AMONG THE IDENTITY GROUPS (A CASE STUDY OF UNIVERSITY OF TEHRAN STUDENTS)

Aliashraf Nazari*
Associate Professor, Political Science, University of Tehran, Iran
(Received: 24 Jan. 2011 - Accepted: 8 May 2012)

Abstract
Stereotype is misunderstandings about people with personality, behavior, attitudes, competencies, and in connection with any group (gender, race, class, status, location) includes any type of cognitive stereotypes toward people and other groups, but misconceptions and inaccurate information contained on them. In other words, people may even have some limited information or ambiguous, in the process of molding or exaggerate some facts to consider and generalize. The main issue of this paper is to understand the reasons and grounds for the formation of attitudes and ideas that each of us got stereotyped and stereotyped in relation to the surrounding environment and to pass them; understanding and assessing the associated factors such as gender, age, location, economic status, employment status, education level, field of study and stereotypes main purpose of this article. In this study will be presented with the application of a survey, the views of the people (students of University of Tehran) about the identity of the community groups understand and analyzed.

Keywords
classification, identity, prejudice, recognition, social learning, stereotype, University of Tehran.

* Email: aashraf@ut.ac.ir
Fax: +98 21 66409595
THE PLACE AND INFLUENCE OF HALFORD MACKINDER’S THEORY IN BRITAIN’S GLOBAL POLITICS

Hessameddin Vaez-zadeh*
Assistant Professor, Europena Studies, University of Tehran, Iran
(Received: 25 Feb. 2015 - Accepted: 18 Jan. 2016)

Abstract
This study attempts to explore the development and evolution of Mackinder’s geopolitical thinking in global politics of British Empire and its influence thereafter. This research paper examines the characteristics of geopolitical perspective of Britain, through Halford Mackinder's Heartland theory during the three periods of the early twentieth century to the present time. In this regard, the paper will review variables of territorial status, power, geopolitical rivalries, and geopolitical determinism to explore the core thesis of Mackinder's geopolitics and implications of British international politics today. The article approaches realism/neorealism for understanding the role of Mackinder's geopolitical considerations in Britain's global politics. The Author argues that Mackinder primarily tried to identify geopolitical advantages and disadvantages of Great Britain, and then, finding solutions to sustain British Empire's life and prevent its decline. The findings show that interactions of identified factors played a role in policy development and geopolitical rivalries with other European powers. This article suggests that the foreign policy decisions of British statesmen have largely influenced by Mackinder's geopolitical variables in terms of balance of power and the continuity of Britain's influence during the Empire and in the present time in some parts of the world, including Eurasia and the Middle East.

Keywords
balance of power, Britain, foreign policy, geopolitical rivalry, Halford Mackinder, Hartland, world politics.

* Email: hvaez@ut.ac.ir Fax: +98 21 88630796